

PRESENTERS

John Edwards, Privacy Commissioner, Wellington

John was appointed to the independent statutory position of Privacy Commissioner in February 2014. He is currently serving his second five-year term. John provides independent comment on significant personal information policies and issues. Prior to his appointment, he practised law in Wellington for over 20 years specialising in information law while representing a wide range of public and private sector clients. John has acted in legal roles for the Ministry of Health, State Services Commission, Department of Prime Minister & Cabinet and Inland Revenue Department. For 15 years, he held a warrant as a district inspector for mental health and has also been a district inspector for intellectual disability services.

Joanna Hayward, General Counsel, Office of the Privacy Commissioner, Wellington

Joanna is the General Counsel for the Office of the Privacy Commissioner (OPC), leading the in-house legal team and advising on a variety of privacy issues including complaints, investigations, litigation, information sharing and policy matters, and law reform.

She has over twenty years legal experience in both private practice and as a government lawyer. Prior to joining OPC in July 2014 Joanna was an adviser to the New Zealand Law Commission on information law reform projects including the law of privacy. She has also practiced commercial and financial law in private practice in Wellington and Auckland and as an in-house lawyer in London.

CO-AUTHOR

Annabel Fordham, Public Affairs Manager, Office of the Privacy Commissioner, Wellington

Annabel has a background in social science and law. She currently leads the public affairs, communications, publications and media work of the Office. The Office maintains an active presence on social media and is continuing to develop the ways it engages stakeholders. Annabel also oversees the development of the Privacy Commissioner's outreach and education function, including the transformation to online learning modules, enabling privacy training resources to be easily and freely available.

The statements and conclusions contained in this booklet are those of the author(s) only and not those of the New Zealand Law Society. This booklet has been prepared for the purpose of a Continuing Legal Education course.
