

PRESENTER

James Mahuta-Coyle, Lambton Chambers, Wellington

Prior to entering the legal profession James worked in the New Zealand Legislature for two Parliamentary Research Units (2002-2006), before becoming a Ministerial Adviser to a Cabinet Minister (2007- 2008). He was subsequently admitted in 2009. Before joining the independent bar, James was an Associate at Chen Palmer Partners and then a boutique criminal practice (together, 2009 – 2011). His practice now is primarily concentrated on commercial and property-related litigation, but he maintains ongoing and active judicial review and criminal law work streams. Most recently the focus of James' practice has been litigating the disputes that arise within unit title developments whenever owners must resolve building problems collectively.
