

PRESENTERS

John Blair, General Counsel and Company Secretary
Air New Zealand Ltd, Auckland

After 15 years of in-house corporate legal work in Europe, John returned to New Zealand in 1996 to the General Counsel role at Air New Zealand. Since then, his experience in the aviation industry has included numerous regulatory, liability, corporate governance and aviation insurance issues. Managing a small team of lawyers in a complex industry has provided interesting challenges and required a good understanding of airline business strategies and the role of in-house lawyers in dealing with commercial issues and management.

Ian Haynes, Partner
Kensington Swan, Auckland

Ian has been a partner in the firm of Kensington Swan or its predecessor firms for over 35 years. He is a past-president of NZLS, a former president of ADLS and a former board member of NZLS. He has a special interest in reform of the profession and in professional ethics. As president of the NZLS, he initiated and promoted the NZLS reform model and obtained unanimous support of the model by district law societies. Since then, he has been actively involved in developing and advancing the model and advising the NZLS in relation to the Lawyers and Conveyancers Bill and then Act. Ian is also a specialist in commercial property law, but with experience in various other areas, including arbitration, expert evidence and litigation support.
